The Chancery Court of Manchester has made kilometres long but hitherto it has only touched an order for the compulsory winding up of Messrs. Reiss Bros., Ltd.

MAN'S ANCESTORS.

ORANG-UTAN AND GIBBON.

REPTILE, AGE HORROR.

There is not a little that will startle the public in Professor Hermann Klaatsch's "Evolution and Progress of Mankind." The author died in 1916 but his work has been completed and brought.completely up to date by another German anthropologist, Professor Hellborn. The translation is by Mr. Joseph McCabe. The main point which the book makes is that it postulates a plural origin for man. The Aurig-nac (or higher type prehistoric mac), Klaatsch believed, had come from Asia, and his skeleton showed affinities with the gorilla.

This was not to say that man was descended either from an orang or a baboon:

prehistoric man) in the same way had, he thought, come from Africa, and his skeleton showed affinities with the gorilla.

Man and the anthropoid apes have risen from a level of brain that was common to their ancestors and those of the ordinary monkeys. The nearest living representative of the primitive common level are the gibbons, small man-like apes of the Indo-Asiatic islands. They are in their organisation not far from the starting point from which man and the manlike apes diverged in their several directions.

The home of the commonasn cestor was possibly a continent in the Indian Ocean which hafoundered.

"SUPERIOR" SAVAGES. To recover the characteristics of prehistoric man, Khatsch made a very careful study of the Australian patives, and some of his most interesting pages deal with them. He gives a kindly verdict regarding them:

That "savage gentleman" the Australian aboriginal shows us by his natural pride that primitive man was quite a superior person, a king in his own domein. In spite of his "savagery" there is nothing low or bestial about him.

He connects the Australians' dislike of reptiles with an instinct of horror which the reptile age developed in mankind; and he gives an illustration of the thigh of the gigantosaurus, which suggests that this beast was a more terrible creature than even the brontosaurus itself.

The long struggle of mammals and reptiles is not known to us. in detail, he says, but we have evidence enough that there was a fearful struggle. That man as such can have had any knowledge of the gigantic monsters of the Secondary Era, remains of have been found America and East Africa enormous proportions, is quite out. of the question. But the ancient struggle has left such deep scars that effects of them have come down from pre-human ages right into civilisation. This work gives a vivid and modern account of anthropology and of man's development; it is written in a most interesting style for the general reader and is well illustrated, though some of the photographs are poor. It can be. strongly recommended, says the Daily Mail.

Burna's Loneliness. Genius is a lonely thing. Nature takes pains to raise barriers between the immortals of the ince and their fellow-men; and Robert Burns paid the full price for-his "social madness," his heights of vision, his "light from heaven. That "social madness" besmirched him; that light from heaven led him astray; and the heights of vision were sometimes hidden behind thun Herclouds of remorse, of despair, of ultimate doom. Yet, the flood-tides of his poetic inspiration set at nought the boundaries, of carthly circumstance, and bore him, king-like, to his interitance of song, to his throne in the hearts of men; so that Robert Burns is to-

... The old idea of an epigram was a brief poem which gave you a picture for temembrance, firm and decisive as a medal struck with a single blow of the die. Dr. A Butler's translations of the Greek miniatures in this mode are the best; they were praised according to their descrits by Walter Pater 40 years ago. One of the briefest and most beautiful (two line attributed to Plato) is thus Englished by this ripe scholar, who was helped in his task by the smishine of Egypt and its fragrance of the far, fair past:

Yet I can think of four two-line English epigrams which, day-more than a century after his each in its own way, is as fine as death-not only the national bard the ancient models. One of them of Scotland, but one of the great is an enitaph barely decipherable teachers and singers sent to this on a grey stone in a Kentish earth now and then Feotprints of churchyard surrounded by trees Robert Burns, by Jessie Patrick where the doves coo-coo-coo all the year round :-

To strengthen the Hungarian "Awakened (the Magyars"), Admiral Horthy has created a new, semi-religious, semi-military Order. It is called the Order of Heroes. The magnates, owners of large estates, have sacrificed a certain amount of land to create farms for these "new Crusaders." . Admittance to the Order is by severe selection from among officers and men tried out in war, and especially in fighting against democracy in Hungary.

A remarkable record of Air Raid damage in London is published by the British Fire Prevention Committee, illustrated by maps and photographs, which afford clear proof that Londoners took the German bombing very coolly because they did not know and were kept in ignorance of the devastation done. If it had been made public that the General Post Office, on the top floor, had been wholly wrecked. the Royal Academy in one gallery, reduced to ruin, Savoy-mansions, Strand, collapsed from roof to cellar on one front and Somerset House badly injured, nothing would have staved off a panic. The evidence afforded is abundant that bombing, in its most clementary stages, carried with it possibilities of destruction terrible to contemplate. Yet the record is by no means complete.

The British view, which it is declared in fully endorsed by Rome, is that while the German offer in its present shape does. not afford a quitable basis for negotiation, it could serve as a starting point for serious discussions. With a view to the attainment thereof, it is pointed out that because the French and Belgians have closed the door with a bang, it does not follow that Great Britain and Italy. must follow suit, and there is even talk of the possibility of London and Rome sending a joint reply.

Film makes teeth dingy get this free tube at your store.

You feel on your teeth a viscous film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Food stains, etc., cloud that film. Then it forms a thin dingy coat. Film is also the basis of tartar.

The ordinary tooth paste leaves much of that film intact, Thus most people's teeth, until lately, were clouded more or less. Beautiful teeth were less common.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Most tooth troubles are now traced to film: And, despite the tooth brush, they became almost universal.

Now millions combat it

Dental science has, for long, sought ways to fight that film. Two effective methods have been found. Able authorities, by careful tests, proved them beyond question. Now millions of people are using them daily, largely by dental advice.

One method acts to curdle film, the other to remove it. And this is done without the use of any harmful scouring agent.

A new-type tooth paste has been created, based on modern research. It includes some new essentials and avoids some old mistakes. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants are embodied in it.

Some Pepsodent effects

Film coats are more readily combated. The teeth become highly polished, so film less easily adheres.

Pepsodent also multiplies the starch di-gestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize the acids which cause decay.

This Nature's great tooth-protecting agents are given manifold effect, while soap-and-chalk pastes reduce their power.

These results are bringing a new dental era in millions of homes the world over. And these whiter, safer, cleaner teeth mean life-long benefits. When you find them out, you will want your people to enjoy them.

The dainty people you see are probably users of Pepsodent. To women it means new beauty; to men new cleanliness; to children Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-costs disappear.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific film combatant, which whitens, cleans and protects the teeth without the use of barmful grit. Now advised by leading dentists the world over. Now on sale in two sizes by all druggists.

| PENALTY OF POPULARITY |
|-----------------------|
| CHARGE OF KIDNAPPING. |

A man and his wife were committed to stand their trial at the Criminal Sessions yesterday by Mr. J. R. Wood on a charge of kidnapping the three-year old son of a Chinese seaman living at 206K, Canton Road, where defendants also resided. It appears that the boy was very popular amongst his neighbours and was continually taken out for walks with the consent of his parents. On April 24, the child disappeared and it is alleged that defendants took him away.

The woman told the Magistrate that the child was very fond of her and that she took him to adopt as her'son; she naively added that if for Hongkong, Bhanghai, back she could have him. The y and is due here on or man denied the charge alleging that he was out when his wife took the child away.
